I will be walking backwards for most of the tour so if I am about to run into any poles or bushes, please let me know. But if I am going to run into a cute guy, maybe just let it happen.

Please do not feed the squirrels!

You can always tell who lives on the Hill by who has the nicest calves.

Gloria Kaufman Hall has the nicest bathrooms on campus.

It is said that one tower of Royce is one brick layer taller than the other. Any guesses as to which is taller? [Takes poll.] I have no idea!

For those of you looking for a cheap and romantic night out, the planetarium on top of the Math and Sciences Building offers free starshows on Wednesday nights.

UCLA has won a national championship every year for more than 20 years.

The professor who led the charge to demote Pluto to a dwarf planet works at UCLA.

If you were to go beneath Dixon Plaza, you would actually see that it is a bridge and hollow underneath.

If you are intimidated by student solicitors on BruinWalk, just put your headphones on, keep your head down and keep moving.

You’ll notice that all of the walls in the Broad Art Center are white. This is because the art department does not want their students to be inspired by other people’s work, but instead to draw from their own creativity. That’s why the cafe in Broad is named “Untitled.”

Legend has it that once you have touched the water of the inverted fountain as a freshman, you are not allowed to touch it again until you have finished your last final as a senior, lest you fail a class. People take it so seriously that my friend dropped his phone into the fountain and it took him 10 minutes to find a graduate to get it for him.

Franz Hall is home to our psychology department and is made up of three buildings. The smallest is where the undergraduate lecture halls are. The middle one is where a lot of the graduate student T.A. offices are and the biggest is home to many of the professors’ offices. Some students have referred to it as the id, the ego, and the superego.
